Market Commentary

Global equities rose for the third straight month in January. In the US, economic growth in the fourth quarter easily surpassed expectations, and consumer confidence reached its highest level in two years. However, the US Federal Reserve (Fed) dashed hopes for a March rate cut, triggering a late-month sell-off. US stocks outperformed stocks in non-US developed markets, where recession fears persisted.

Non-US stocks were mixed. European stocks declined marginally, while estimates show inflation moderated. In the UK, stocks dropped as annual headline inflation unexpectedly increased in December. Meanwhile, stocks in Japan rallied and outperformed broader developed markets with annual headline inflation in December moderating. Emerging markets stocks plunged as the US dollar strengthened.

Fund Commentary

The Fund produced a strong return in January and edged ahead of the index return.

NVIDIA was a key contributor in January as shares of this chipmaker advanced following news that Meta Platforms, the parent company of Facebook and Instagram, will have nearly 600,000 NVIDIA units for artificial intelligence applications by the end of 2024. NVIDIA's advancements in the PC market should also augment revenue growth this year.

The key detractors from performance included HDFC Bank, ICON and SBA Communications.

HDFC Bank - Shares of India's top private sector bank moved lower. While the company posted quarterly net profits that were up more than 30% and exceeded expectations, investor concerns over some of HDFC's growth rates tied to the merger with its parent company pressured the stock.

ICON – The company provides outsourced clinical trial and commercialisation services to the pharmaceuticals industry. During the period, management set its financial targets for 2024 and reaffirmed its revenue guidance for 2023. The projected growth rate for this year, however, disappointed some investors.

SBA Communications - This real estate company owns and leases cell towers and distributed antenna systems. Shares declined in conjunction with a spike in interest rates though fundamentals remain supportive.

Notable purchases in January included LVMH Moet Hennessy Louis Vuitton and Planet Fitness while notable sales included NIKE and Kasikornbank.

LVMH Moet Hennessy Louis Vuitton – A position was initiated in this leading luxury goods maker after the company reported results that exceeded expectations and surpassed downbeat results from peers. Earnings remain resilient in the face of a challenged environment for luxury spending.

Planet Fitness – The operator of health and fitness centres was purchased as the company is in transition phase and earnings are expected to inflect positively via acceleration in unit growth. The company is implementing structural and meaningful changes to its franchise model to boost same-store sales.

NIKE - The relatively small position was sold as earnings expectations are anticipated to be revised negatively on the company's guidance around softening consumer demand and weaker macroeconomic conditions, especially in the Greater China and Europe, Middle East and Africa markets. The company also noted softer global online trends.

Kasikornbank – The position was fully exited on evidence that trends are deteriorating. While shares remain inexpensive, there has been little to no balance sheet growth, asset quality trends continue to deteriorate, and the cost/income ratio is on a negative trend.
